

Exercise 3: Digests and Reporters
(due October 16, 2007)

You are researching the following issue of Illinois state tort law: Can the host of a party be held liable for serving alcohol to a guest who subsequently injures another driver in an automobile accident?

1. List some factual and legal concepts (including synonyms, antonyms, and broader and narrower terms) that might help you research the above issue.

_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

2. Using the Illinois Digest 2d, try to locate cases that are relevant to the above issue. Consult the Descriptive-Word Index at the end of the digest to find potentially relevant digest topics and key numbers. (The “digest topic” means the main heading (e.g., Contracts), not the subject corresponding to a particular key number (e.g., Restraint of Trade or Competition).)

a) Digest topic: _____

Key number(s): _____

b) Digest topic: _____

Key number(s): _____

c) Digest topic: _____

Key number(s): _____

3. Look up the promising topics and key numbers in the main part of the digest. Once you have found some case annotations that seem to be on point, circle the key numbers (in #2 above) that turned out to be relevant, and list two of the case citations below. (Don't worry about citation form here; just copy the citations as they appear in the digest.) If you can't find any cases that are directly on point, just list two of the closest ones that you were able to find.

Case #1: _____

Case #2: _____

4. Look up one of the cases you listed above in a reporter—preferably the North Eastern Reporter. Then, write a complete citation to the case below, in ALWD form. Include a pinpoint reference to a relevant page of the case.
